Property Description

Costa del Sol is a charming gated community situated along Costa Rica's Central Pacific coast at Playa Bejuco, in the Puntarenas province, just an hour and a half from the San José International Airport. It is conveniently located near Jaco, which is about 20 minutes to the north, and Parrita, a mere 15 minutes to the south. The newly paved access road leads directly to the beach, complete with a new two-lane bridge. As you explore the surroundings, you'll encounter stunning cliffs and gently rolling hills that provide perfect coastal vistas. The area is rich with tropical forests, serene mangroves, and groves of coconut and palm oil trees, creating an ideal habitat for a diverse range of native flora and fauna. The more time you spend here, the more you'll uncover its hidden wonders and treasures. A short drive brings you to the quaint fishing village of Quepos, which serves as the gateway to the renowned Manuel Antonio National Park, home to Costa Rica's most popular national park beach.
